

In today society the United States Military is getting smaller. There is a big question if it should be required to serve two years in the military. Do you agree or disagree. Personally I disagree. There are some people in the United States that are not healthy enough to partake in this law, it's our own right to join, and furthermore, there are people who are not patriotic enough to want to join.

When most people think of their rights, they think of freedom to choose. They have the freedom to choose if they want to join the military. It would be going against our rights as Americans.

However, there are some Americans who don't like to be called Americans. In today's society, there are alot of unpatriotic people. These people would rather harm us than help us.

Most of all, Americans are not the most healthy people. What would happen to the mentally handicapped or heart patients? It wouldn't be fair to them nor us. Never the less, people would hurt themselves to try to get out of it.

In conclusion, I believe America is not ready for this and probably won't be ready for a while. America is not healthy enough or patriotic enough and furthermore not ready to give up the right to choose whether they can join the military or not join.

This response reflects limited proficiency in persuasive writing skills. The writer is clearly opposed to requiring all Americans to perform two years of military service. Three key ideas are given to support this position (health issues; freedom of choice; lack of patriotism). Although the response is organized, development of the key ideas is general and inadequate.
